I guess he doesn't think men should beat their wives but if they do they damn well better make it anonymous. What a bad essay. They hid it because they wanted the _____. A solution to reputation laundering could be a "Money begrudgingly accepted from really bad people" plaque.

Another solution: take away the tax exemption from bad actors. I don't know, like enablers of pedophiles? Like MIT? Harvard?

So Ito thought Epstein would no longer be "sleeping with -- trying to seduce" 14 and 16-year olds. It's not seduction. It's RAPE. Now we know what Lessig really thinks of pedophilia. Wish @NellieBowles had pushed him on this wretched misogyny

Replying to @nytimes and @NellieBowles

Regarding this: ""If you're going to take the money, you damn well better make it anonymous"": There's NO WAY MIT would take the $ openly from a notorious pedophile. HOW CONVENIENT to find an ethically acceptable means to take it anonymously.
